According to the incoherent story the ignition of a can of roofing paint which he was heating on the kitchen stove was the cause of the accident,

When the paint, composed largely of tar and creosote, caught fire, the blaze left Sunday morning for Venice, Cal. to carry it outside the house.

Just as he reached the outside door he stumbled and fell directly into the blazing mass of tar and creosote,

How he managed to escape alive, how he managed to extinguish the flames from his clothing, Mr. Berndt himself Awning Co. does not know. He was partially delirions when he was given medical assist ance by Doctors L. E. Wightman and J. Is. Wales, after coming to the busi ness district unaided.
